The National Pages cheque for cancer charity

One of the last duties of outgoing Taunton Deane Mayor, Councillor Ken Hayward, was to present a cheque to Somerset Cancer Care.

The cheque for £310 was raised from businesses which signed-up for a gold package with The National Pages, an innovative new internet business search tool projected to become as big as yell.com.

A donation to the cancer charity was included in a one-off bargain price for the gold package for any business which signed up on the launch night of The National Pages in Taunton.

The launch event was organised by Taunton-based Somerset Web Services, which has spent the past three years developing The National Pages.

Other charities around the country will benefit as The National Pages is rolled out in a series of roadshows over the coming months.

The National Pages incorporates an array of search features which make it the most powerful web-based tool available for anybody wanting to find a business or service anywhere in the country.

It has 2.5 million UK businesses in its database which can be searched by distance from a location, by product, by category, and by name.
